Camden City Schools Holds Haiti Relief Fund Raiser Celebration

They raised over $20,000 for Hurricane Katrina victims, and now they are doing the same for Haiti. On Monday March 22, 2010 at Dudley Elementary School, 2250 Berwick Street, Camden, NJ at 12:30 pm, the Camden City Public Schools students joined with staff to hold a rally to report their district wide fund raiser donation to The Philadelphia 76'ers Samuel Dalembert for his foundation.

The students exceeded all expectations by raising $21,125 (and still counting) for Haiti Relief.

For the past 4 weeks, students have raised money through building projects and charitable giving from their hearts to support the relief efforts for Haiti. At the rally, a final tally was announced and a check was presented to Mr. Dalembert to support his efforts on behalf of the earthquake victims in Haiti, his country of origin. Dalembert had promised to match the donation with his own money if the district total exceeded $15,000.

"The Camden City Public Schools staff and students have watched in disbelief as the events in earthquake ravaged Haiti have appeared on the 6 o'clock news. The devastation and loss of life is almost incomprehensible, and the need for help and support is critical for the survivors.

We must all work together to provide relief for Haiti and its children. To do so, the school district will send a message of hope for Haiti as we have conducted a month-long campaign to raise money to support relief efforts in the Haiti earthquake tragedy.

Please keep the children and families of Haiti in your hearts and remember 'The Bridge To Hope Is Through Giving,' "says Dr. B. LeFra Young, Superintendent of Schools.

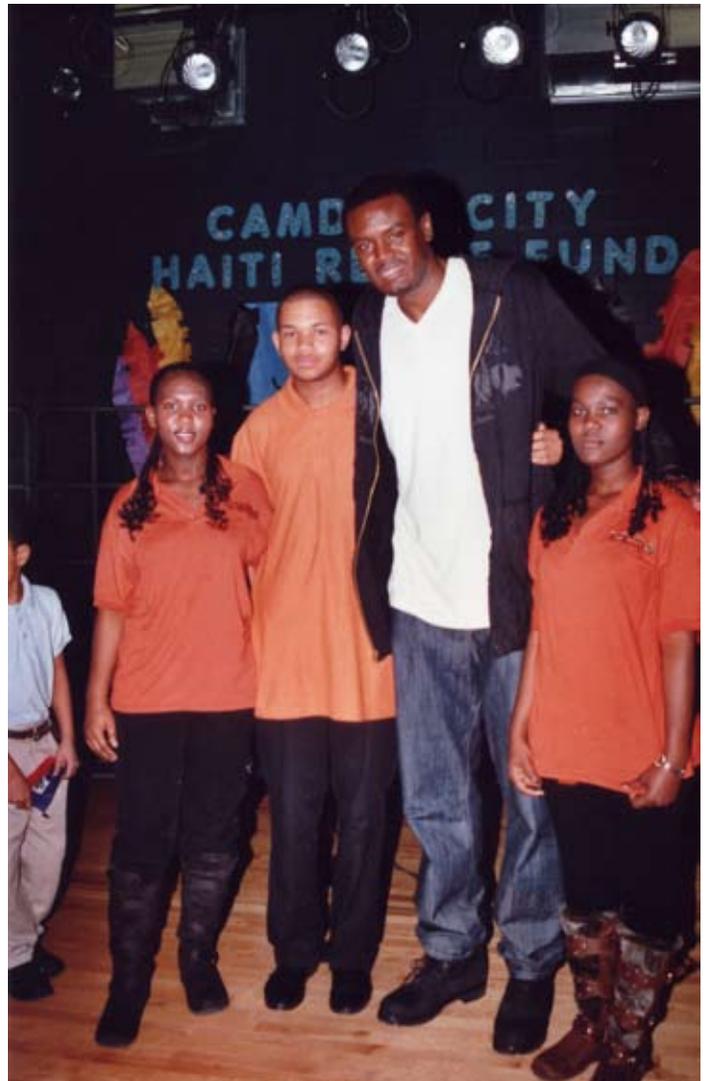

At Dudley Elementary School, Samuel Dalembert announced he will match the districts donation of $21,125 dollar for dollar to help rebuild Haiti's schools and provide relief to the families of Haiti.

Embracing the students and staff of Camden Schools, Samuel Dalembart promised to return to visit with the students to personally thank as many of them as he can in the near future.
