Camden's Molina Students are Reading Partners
With Cherry Hills' Beck Middle School

What: Beck Middle School (Cherry Hill) students make childrens' books for Molina Elementary School students

Where: R. C. Molina
7th and Vine Street
Camden, NJ

When: May 27, 2010
10:00 - 10:45 am - readings
10:45 - 11:30 am - playground activities

Background: As part of a classroom project Beck Middle School students annually (since 2001) prepare stories and art work for childrens books they write and publish. Each spring they travel to R. C. Molina Elementary School to deliver and read their books to kindergarten students at Molina. This school partnership is supported by, and originates with, the Bookmates program, a part of the Jewish Community Relation Council of the Jewish Federation of Southern N. J. and the Catholic - Jewish Commission of the JCRC. Along with the student authored books the Beck students also donate childrens books to the Molina students for their home libraries.
